MEDICINAL.

IVER

This important organ weighs but about three pounds, and all the blood in a living person (about three gallons) passes through it at least once every half hour, to have the bile and other impurities strained or filtered from it. Bile is the natural purgative of the bowels, and if the Liver becomes torpid it is not separated from the blood, but carried through the veins to all parts of the system, and in trying to escape through the cores of the skin, causes it to turn yellow or a dirty brown color. The stomach becomes diseased and Dyspepsis, Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliourness, Jaundies, Chills, Malarial Fevers, Piles, Sick and Sour Stom-sch, and general debility follow. The cure of all bilious diseases and Liver complaint is made cer-tain by taking Henatine in accordance with directions. Benjamin Hunter's Last Hours. Dr. Randall W. Morgan, county physician to the board of chosen freeholders for Camden county, and who attended Benjamin Hunter while the latter was in jail, has presented his sworn report to the board. In regard to the mooted question whether Hunter was given whiskey or not in his last hours, Dr. Morgan thus states, under oath : "I kept him steadily upon a supportive treatment, under which he each day showed a decided improvement. Up to noon of the second day after the attempt, he had refused any nourishment, saying he did not want it, and asking to be allowed to die. I then explained that I was put there to prolong his life, and that I did not intend he should get away from us in that manner. I set a pitcher of beef ten outside the cage, telling him that the men would give it to him as he wished, but that if it was not all gone by supper time he would have to take the rest by injection. When I came at suppor time it was gone, and we had no more trouble about nourishmet. "Oa the morning of the execution I went into the cage early, and staid the rest of the morning with him, at the request of the sheriff, in order to see that nothing improper should happen, as we had been led to expect a scene at the gallows.

"Everything went on much as usual on such occasions, prayers had been gose through, and Hunter was dressed lying on his back in the bed with his eyes closed, when he requested me to give him some whisky. Half ac hour before the hanging was to take place I accordingly gave him about a fluid ounce of whisky, promising him more in fifteen minhe thanked me and wanted more whisky. I told him I would give him more in a little while. In twenty minutes after the first whisky and ten minutes before the execution I gave him about a fluid ounce more of whisky, followed by some water. He thanked me and I had scarcely time to walk outside the cage and set down the glass, when he began to expecto. rate and slobber, and throw his head to one side, acting as near as possible the drunken

"His designs then were quite plain coougn in his weakened condition two punces of whiskey might make him drunk, they should remember that only a few nights before he had a piot and a ball to him at onge, and it did not intoxicate him. "While the knot was being adjusted to his neck and the waite cap sitting on his head, he opened his eyes and looked straight and full to my face for eight or ten seconds, until the capwas pulled down over them. There are certain characteristic evidences of death by banging not proper to mention here, and which could not present themselves were the party uccon-

THE WHEAT SUPPLY. - The immense exports of grain during the past year have very naturally induced the inquiry as to the supply for the future, and in this connection, it may be stated that the amounts from the various sections of the country do not give indications of an overabucdant crop of wheat for the ensuing harvest in scious or dead before hanging, and which were present to a marked degree in this case, and dant crop of wheat for the ensuing harvest in this country. The wheat does not at the present time look healthy, aithough it is too soon as yet to determine what the result will be.

A very intelligent journal of Chicago, the Prairie Farmer, says it is stated that the total exports of wheat and flour (the latter at five bushels to the barret) from all United States ports from July 1, 1878, to January 1, 1879 were 93,593 188 bushels. From January 1 to February 25, the total exports aggregated 16 196 359 bushels, making a total from July 1, 1878, of bushels, making a total from July 1, 1878, of 109 713 547, bushels. It is estimated that the available surplus for export out of the crop of 1878 will be 147 000,(0), so if we deduct the 109 773,557 bushels therefrom, we have 37 225,463 bushels available for this port before another crop is harvested. But the presumption of so large a surplus for foreign export yet is based upon two propositions: (1) That the increase in the crop of 1878 was as large as 60, 20 0.00 bushels over that of 1877. (2) That the visible supply shall be reduced by July 1, 1879, to as low a point as it was on July 1, 1878, viz: 4,94,632 bushels A writer on this subject says, regarding the British demand for wheat:

"In view of the great apparent supply of wheat in America, Great Britian has not been in any hurry to buy, and from September 1, 1873, to January 1, 1879, her total net imports of wheat over exports) were nearly 2,500,000 bushels less than for the same period of 1877. countries of Europe that have any surplus of wheat for export are Russia, Hungary and Roumasia. All the rest had deficient crops in 1878, and have been stoady importers up to the pres-
